In addition to all evidentiary objections and issues raised by McKesson in its summary judgment and Daubert motions, McKesson sets forth above its objections to the trial exhibits identified by TriZetto. McKesson reserves the right to supplement or amend this list after receiving marked copies of TriZetto's collection of trial exhibits and as otherwise appropriate. McKesson also reserves the right to object to any new trial exhibits or demonstratives introduced by TriZetto. McKesson further reserves the right to object to the use of any exhibit with a witness who is not competent to testify about the substance of the exhibit (see e.g., Fed. R. Evid. 602).

McKesson notes that the applicability of objections based on foundation, relevance and hearsay, among others, depends on the context and purpose for which an exhibit is used. McKesson has endeavored to list such objections to TriZetto's trial exhibits based on their anticipated usage. However, McKesson reserves the right to assert additional objections, including those based on foundation, relevance and hearsay, to TriZetto's trial exhibits at the time that TriZetto's intended usage of them becomes clear.

Because the admissibility of a document is dependant on context, the inclusion of a document on McKesson's own list of trial exhibits should not be construed as a waiver of the right to object to the admissibility of the same document when offered by TriZetto.

McKesson's objections to TriZetto's trial exhibits are based on information provided by TriZetto regarding the exhibits. McKesson reserves the right to modify its objections to the extent that information provided by TriZetto is inaccurate, incomplete, or subsequently amended. McKesson's repetition of such information herein is not an admission that any such information is accurate or appropriate.

Code	Explanation
